

HOME PORTAL ROUTER

Abstract

A portal web page is used on a router to display all the devices that are known to the router to be devices that can be accessed from within the same network, from another network, or from the Internet. Entries are created in the portal web page from the router's port forwarding table. These entries allow access to a listed device with a single mouse click.